Abstract

The present inventions relates to UHT-treated products comprising containing a strach n-alkenyl succinate as texturising texturizing agent, and said whereby such products have a low viscosity after UHT-treatment, but full viscosity is developed develope their full viscosity after a second treatment. Starch n-octenyl succinate is can be used as well as a combined texturising texturizing agent and partial egg yolk replacement in UHT-treated products. A process for preparing these products is provided.
